Speed Urged In Shortway Work

HARRISBURG, Feb. 9 (AP)—Highway Secretary Lewis M. Stevens has been urged to set up a special section in his department to speed major road projects in Pennsylvania.

The advice came from House Majority Leader Albert W. Johnson of McKean County.

At the same time Johnson asserted that the current recession would be over "before the Highways Department gets its crash program off the ground."

Penalties Increased For Violations

HARRISBURG, Feb. 9 (AP)—Tougher penalties for motor vehicle violations—including a 15-day license suspension for what now brings only a letter of warning—will be effective in Pennsylvania March 1.

The move was announced today by Gov. Leader as the first major changes in the penalties system since it was set up two years ago.

These are the innovations:

1. A 15-day suspension instead of a letter of warning in motorist's found guilty of illegally passing a school bus on first offense. Also stepped-up penalties for subsequent offenses.

Year's Suspension

2. One-year suspension instead of 180 days for conviction of racing on the highways.

Still another step, this one approved by the 1957 Legislature, will equip all school buses with new warning lights by the start of next fall's sessions.

Before February 1956, when Gov. Leader revamped the state's penalties system, there was only one penalty on the books—an arbitrary 90-day license suspension for persons convicted of speeding.

The 1956 system of penalties—commenced by executive order—gave Pennsylvania specific fines and penalties for a wide range of moving violations. There had been widespread feeling that the 90-day suspension for speeding was too harsh and that other motorists were getting off scot free for what would have been serious violations in other states.

Today's order tightening the 1956 order was said by the governor to be "part of a youth safety program designed to protect young people on the highways."

"These steps are being taken," he continued, "to tighten up on these violations which experience shows are extremely serious."

In addition to a 15-day suspension for illegally passing a school bus on first offense, the order carries a 30-day suspension for second offense and a 90-day suspension for third offense.

Regulations

Present regulations carry 15 days for second offense and 30 days for third offense.

"Passing a school bus illegally certainly warrants more than a letter of warning. The illegal passing of a school bus poses a serious threat to the safety of Pennsylvania's school children," said Leader.

The law provides that vehicles traveling in either direction on a two or three-lane highway must stop when a school bus is loading or discharging passengers.

Coal Group Fights Atomic Power Plan

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—A coal industry group demanded today that the government scrap the present civilian atomic power program. It argued that anything atoms can do in this field, coal can do better.

The Southern Coal Producers' Assn. said the A-power program is "wasteful and impractical"—that the 124 million dollars earmarked for it in the new budget could better be spent elsewhere.

Joseph E. Moody, association president, aired the views of the coal producers in an open letter to Rep. Durham (D-NC), chairman of the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee.

Federal Efforts

Moody said federal efforts to speed the development of nuclear power have cost at least 387 million dollars and have been "a dismal failure."

"About all that has been proved thus far," he said, "is that the cost of civilian atomic power is many times that of coal, gas and oil and will be for a lengthy period to come."

He said that if any more funds are channeled into the program, they will be used "proving this fact over and over again—and at the expense of the taxpayers."

Moody said civilian atomic power is neither cheaper, more efficient nor safer than power produced by plants using conventional fuels.

The 120-million-dollar power plant at Shippingport, Pa., would lose 24 million dollars a year if operated at standard capacity, he said. Its operating costs are 13 times greater than they would be if coal were used, he contended.

Moody said it cannot be argued that atomic power is needed because reserves of other fuels are dwindling. He said coal supplies alone will last about 2,000 years at the present rate of consumption.

What is needed, he said, is to put the atomic power program "on a scientific, orderly, research and development basis where it belongs."

"Apparently," he said in a statement, "the people circulating this rumor don't know me very well. I've never backed away from a fight before, and I'm not going to start now. If the party wants me, I'm ready to start campaigning right now."

Van Zandt said he would confer with the state GOP leadership in the immediate future to resolve this question.

He went on to say that he had been "greatly impressed and considerably flattered" by some indications of strong support in central Pennsylvania.

He said he had the support of influential citizens in every section of Pennsylvania, and more than a score of newspapers.

Frigid Winds Lash Entire Northeast

By The Associated Press

ICY WINDS of near 60 m.p.h. blasted the Northeast Sunday, virtually paralyzing upstate New York in swirling snow while sleet and freezing rain slammed into the central states as winter tightened its frigid grip over most of the nation.

Freezing gusts whipped up deep fine snow in upstate New York blocking highways with towering drifts and cutting visibility to practically zero.

Lake Flurries

The Weather Bureau described flurries whipping off the Great Lakes into New York State as "near blizzardlike."

Syracuse, a city of 220,000, in the hard-hit central part of the state, ordered emergency measures in what officials described as the worst storm since 1950. The city was buried under 34 inches of snow, 11 of which had fallen since Saturday night.

At least seven persons died in New York in storm connected accidents and heart attacks from shoveling snow.

State police banned highway travel except in emergencies as drifts piled up almost as fast as plows could clear it.

In Syracuse many roads in suburban areas were impassable. Three of six main highways into Ithaca were plugged. In Oswego County near Syracuse drifts piled up to eight feet on some roads.

Utica public schools were ordered closed Monday and Tuesday.

Wind gusts of nearly 60 m.p.h. were reported at Worcester, Mass. They reached 56 m.p.h. near Binghamton, N.Y., and 40 m.p.h. at Albany.

Freezing Rain

The midstates storm was laced with freezing rain.

Freezing drizzle was reported on the Texas-Oklahoma border while Nebraska, Kansas and South Dakota were smacked with new snowfalls. The Weather Bureau said some 4 to 6 inches of fresh snow would accumulate by Monday morning.

Other snow flurries were reported from Michigan to New England and southward into the Virginia mountains.

The subzero weather was most bitter in the Midwest.

The mercury dipped to 11 below at O'Hare Airport on Chicago's North Branch and 10 below in Des Moines, Iowa.

Below zero levels reached as far south as western Virginia while cold-shocked northern Florida got another dose of below freezing temperatures.

In southern Florida temperatures were in the 40s.

Toward the southwestern portion of the country patches of drizzle occurred over large sections of the Western Plains.

Mild weather continued Sunday over most sections west of the Continental Divide. However, another disturbance nearing the Pacific Coast spread rain from northern California into Washington.

Scattered areas of rain and snow covered parts of Utah, northern Arizona, and western Colorado Sunday.

Icy Temperatures Mix With Heavy Snowstorm

Tunisia Hurls War Charge At French

TUNIS, Feb. 9 (AP)—Angry Tunisians today called the French bombing of a frontier town an act of war. An authoritative newspaper hinted at a break with the West.

President Habib Bourguiba, considered a good friend of the United States, demanded the French pull the last troops out of Tunisia and give up the vital NATO naval base at Bizerte.

Tunisian officials said the hour-long bombing and strafing yesterday killed 78 persons and wounded 84 in the town of Sakiet Sidi Youssef near the Algerian frontier. They earlier had put the death toll at 100.

"Horrible Sight"

A Swedish Red Cross official, who watched from the town's outskirts as the 25 French warplanes attacked, called it a "horrible sight." He said dead and wounded were lying everywhere.

The French said the attack was a local military incident aimed at wiping out a nest of Algerian rebels harassing French troops and planes from a Tunisian sanctuary. They insisted they had sent a warning in advance of the attack.

A spokesman for French commanders in neighboring Algeria told reporters in Algiers that French troops will pursue Algerian rebel bands into Tunisia if necessary to destroy them.

In Washington, Secretary of State Dulles called in French Ambassador Herve Alphand to express U.S. concern about the situation. The State Department said the U.S. government "is profoundly disturbed by reports received." It was foreseen that the United States would try to get the French to relent on the "hot pursuit" idea.

Arab League

(In Cairo, the secretary general of the Arab League said he cabled U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold asking him to intervene in what he called French aggressive acts, although Tunisia is not an Arab League member. Egypt's Foreign Minister Mahmoud Fawzi promised Egypt's support for Tunisian rights.)

The French commander in Algiers said the Saturday attack was against only military objectives and asserted aerial photographs show that nine-tenths of the village remains intact.

But Nehi Ladgham, Tunisian state secretary, said at a funeral for 58 of the victims schools and homes had been bombed.

The influential Tunisian newspaper L'Action, spokesman for bourguiba's ruling Neo-Destour party, accused the French of committing an act of war on their former North African colony.

"The hard reality teaches us every day that hanging onto the shreds of the West brings us only insults and humiliation," L'Action said.

"One thing is clear: To be respected in 1958 one cannot remain a friend of the West. To be treated with consideration and courtesy one has to be a Nehru, Tito or Nasser."

The attack on the town of 2,000 population stunned the nation.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—Bernard Schwartz said today he will be fired within 24 hours as counsel to a House subcommittee investigating the Federal Communications Commission. "I'm not going to resign," he said.

Schwartz is in trouble with some of his congressional bosses because of his expense vouchers.

Knowland Aims Public Works Plan

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—Sen. Knowland (R-Calif.) said today the Eisenhower administration is ready to throw a public works program into gear if the business recession widens.

Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn.) said the time to do it is now.

Knowland, the Senate Republican leader, told reporters he does not expect any administration proposals to increase government spending unless the economy fails to turn upward by midyear.

"What is done will depend on developments within the next few months," he said. "The feeling of the administration is that business will pick up in the midyear period. But before Congress adjourns the situation will have to be reviewed."

"We have a backlog of public works and reclamation projects that can be used for the purpose of combatting unemployment without resorting to the WPA type of organization."

Provide Jobs

The Works Progress Administration under Franklin D. Roosevelt was designed primarily to provide jobs. Some of its projects were criticized as "boondoggling," with little permanent value.

In contrast to this, Knowland said the administration is keeping tabs on a number of projects that have been approved by the Army Engineers, authorized by Congress and on which preliminary work has been done. He said all that would be needed would be a grant of funds by Congress.

Humphrey, who said he regards the economic situation as likely to become the chief issue in next fall's congressional elections, said in a separate interview he thinks the administration is making a grave mistake by marking time.

"This is the time to move now," he said. "One of the great weaknesses of this administration is that it always does too little too late. We saw it in rockets, missiles and Sputniks. Now we are seeing it in the economy."

Forest Fires Decrease

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—The Forest Service reports that intensive fire prevention activity paid off last year with the fewest mancaused forest fires in 24 years.

Edward P. Cliff, assistant chief of the forest service, told the House Appropriations Committee in testimony made public today that in 1957 there were 3,269 mancaused fires in the national forests compared with an average of 5,600 during the preceding five years.

Advertising Program

Cliff attributed the reduction to the "Smokey Bear" and "Keep Green" advertising programs and the employment of more ranger to police forest areas and check on fire hazards.

Total fires in national forests last year were down from a five-year average of 10,996 to 7,195, and total burned acreage was 133,446, compared with a 250,000-acre average.

Humor Makes Appearance On Slippery Route 611

HEAVY SNOW, cold temperatures and slippery driving conditions couldn't prevent at least one note of humor from appearing on area highways during the past weekend.

It all occurred on Route 611, on the hill in Swiftwater near Pocono Gates.

Traffic had been lined up for over four miles, from Mount Pocono beyond Swiftwater. People were cold, impatient and irritable.

At last traffic began to move and cars were making their way up the Swiftwater hill, when suddenly one automobile spun around and ended cross-wise in the road, blocking all other traffic.

Another car, making good headway was forced to stop by the incident. The driver opened his door and yelled, "Why in #!% didn't you stay home?"

The man driving the car cross-wise in the road lowered his window and loudly replied, "I wish the #!% I would have stayed home."

Bronx Airman Takes Off On Simulated Moon Trip

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Feb. 9 (AP)—Donald G. Farrell, a 23-year-old airman from the Bronx, took off today on a make-believe trip to the moon.

Next Saturday morning scientists hope the tall, blond volunteer will step from a 3X5-foot steel shell and report that the human body is ready for the rigors of space travel.

Farrell was tucked into an experimental space cabinet at the School of Aviation Medicine at Randolph Air Force Base near here at 9:35 a.m.

Seven Days

For seven days he is scheduled to experience conditions that duplicate largely those a human being would meet in a satellite circling the globe 1,000 miles distant, or on a trip to the moon.

If the quiet, slow-talking accounting clerk survives the scientific ordeal, his name will be written indelibly with those of other space pioneers. So far, volunteers have been able to spend only 24 hours at a stretch in the space cabinet.

The consensus at this unique school, where there are more scientists than plain privates, is that Farrell will emerge weary but triumphant.

Farrell, unmarried son of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Farrell, the Bronx, N.Y., climbed into his cramped steel shell this morning with nonchalance of a Sunday motorist stepping into the family car.

"Well, here goes," were his final words as he stretched his arms, probably for the last time this week.

Then he settled into the instrument-laden pilot's chair and faced a battery of baffling scientific devices, which will record everything but his innermost thoughts.

He could move his elbows a little. By learning forward he could raise himself out of the chair a few inches. That was all.

The steel hatch to the cabinet was banged shut and hermetically sealed.

Farrell was alone—just as alone as a space traveler making a solo flight to the moon.

The space experts clustered outside the steel wall could see and hear Farrell. He could see nothing but the instrument panel of his make-believe space ship and the white-painted steel walls a few inches from his face.

The air pressure inside the cabinet dropped to eight pounds per square inch, about half that on earth.

The Weather

Poconos—Fair and not quite so cold or windy today and tonight with highest 15-20 and lowest tonight 5-12. Tuesday partly cloudy and milder with highest 22-27.

Winter Makes Hardest Blow At Poconos

WINTER clamped an icy grip on the Stroudsburgs and the entire Pocono Mountains area yesterday in the wake of the season's heaviest snowstorm.

State Police at all area barracks reported highways hazardous despite efforts of State Highways Department crews who worked on an around-the-clock schedule during the weekend.

Joseph C. Ciampi, Monroe County highway superintendent, said last night that drifts were causing trouble on secondary roads through the county.

Constant Action

Ciampi, whose men had been in almost constant action since 3 a.m. Friday, reported that yesterday's battle against the snow was being waged by 25 trucks, six graders, five loaders, 13 wagonettes and 75 men.

State Police at the Stroudsburg barracks said all area highways were treacherous and reported that New Jersey State Police were reporting ice on highways in that area.

At Pocono Lake, State Police said the snow was hard packed on highways with little drifting.

State Police at Milford said they had numerous requests for wreckers to free stalled vehicles over the weekend. Drifting was reported, especially in the Greentown area.

Surprisingly enough, the weekend passed without a single major traffic accident—either rural or urban—reported in the area.

The kids, of course, loved every minute of it. Police in both Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg blocked off streets to permit safe sled riding and they were in constant use.

For the average home owner, however, the snow was one big headache. Some residents, after shoveling sidewalks for the fourth or fifth time in an effort to keep up with the fall, threw up their hands in disgust and vowed to wait until it was all over before another try.

Others, faced with large parking lot areas, gave up even earlier. Those with long drive-ways simply stayed at home.

Plunging temperatures Saturday and yesterday added to the discomfort caused by the snowfall. Pedestrians were conspicuous by their absence.

At one point in the weekend, things got so bad that Ciampi's department broke out two bulldozers to help clear the highways. They were used on the South Sterling Road and Legislative Route 4540 in Tunkhannock and Tobyhanna Townships.

The U. S. Weather Bureau at Allentown - Bethlehem-Easton Airport reported an eight-inch new snow fall at Mount Pocono.

Added to a five-inch accumulation from previous storms, it left a total of 13 inches on the ground at the end of the weekend.

The temperature at Mount Pocono last reached as high as freezing at 5:30 p.m. Thursday—when the mercury hit it right on the nose at 32. It was down to one above zero at midnight last night.

William Hagerty, Stroudsburg weather forecaster, reported a total snowfall here of 11.6 inches. Temperatures here have not reached the freezing point since Thursday. Hagerty said it was three above zero at midnight.

Forecasts for both Mount Pocono and the Stroudsburgs call for diminishing winds and continued cold today. And there's a possibility of some snow flurries.

Husky Basketball Players Push Bus Through Snow

NEWFOUNDLAND — To the victors belongs the spoils. Greene-Dreher-Sterling High's basketball team found this out the hard way Friday night after defeating Waymart on the loser's court.

On the return trip to Newfoundland the players' bus, driven by Lorimer Brown, got stuck on a hill and forced the game "winners" to get out and push the vehicle up the knoll.

Several miles later, the bus again stalled on a hill and the players again reciprocated by lending their strength to the stalled bus.

Oh yes, the boys received moral support—from the inside—from the cheerleaders who also were passengers on the stricken bus.

There will be no school at Greene-Dreher-Sterling School today because of the heavy snow.

Pennsylvania Temperatures Tumble As Frigid Air Moves Into State From Canada

By The Associated Press
FRIGID AIR from Canada engulfed Pennsylvania yesterday, dropping temperatures to subnormal levels.

It was the season's bitterest cold.

And there's no noticeable let-up in the cold spell expected until Wednesday.

Secondary roads remained slick and main highways lay in spots from the heavy snowfall Friday and Saturday.

A low of two below zero was forecast overnight for the western part of the state.

In the central and eastern portions the mercury wasn't expected to climb past the 10 degree mark.

In some sectors of Somerset and Cambria counties secondary roads were closed on account of snow drifts.

Some two feet of snow that fell in the past week covered parts of Somerset County.

In some sectors of Somerset and Cambria counties schools will be closed at least until drifts are cleared.

In the east, Middletown reached 17. Harrisburg and Avoca had 16. There was considerable sunshine through the clouds in most sections of Pennsylvania but it had no great effect on the mercury.

Last night the mercury slipped downward again and at 9 p.m. Bradford was down to 3 above zero, Brookville 5 above, Phillipsburg 5 above, and Altoona 8 above.

Williamsport and Allentown were down to 11. Harrisburg 14 and Philadelphia 15.

Drifts 15 feet high piled up in Wayne County and highway crews worked around-the-clock to keep main arteries open.

An unidentified motorist was found marooned in a truck 25 miles north of Honesdale. He was suffering from exposure and exhaustion.

Many rural roads in the Towanda area also were closed by snow drifts.

In Coryland, Bradford County, a family of three was rescued after being marooned for a week.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Conley and their 5-year-old daughter burned furniture to keep warm.

At Sayre the walls of the Valley Memorial Swimming Pool collapsed from the accumulation of snow.

H. Austin Snyder, Sayre superintendent of schools, said the damage would exceed $20,000.

Macmillan In Favor Of Conference

LONDON, Monday, Feb. 10 (AP)—Prime Minister Macmillan announced today he is willing to take part in a well-prepared East-West summit conference to preserve world peace. He said such a meeting could have positive results.

In an 800-word note in plain man-to-man terms, the British leader told Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin: "I should be willing to participate in a meeting of heads of government which I think must be preceded by adequate preparations."

The note, reiterating the West's view of a need for advanced planning, was delivered in Moscow Saturday.

Macmillan set no other preconditions for a top-level meeting beyond declaring that any participating country should have the right to submit proposals for discussions in addition to Bulganin's own suggestions.

Expresses Belief
Macmillan wrote as though he considered a summit meeting inevitable. He ended by expressing the belief that both Russia and the West have a common interest in the preservation of peace.

"On this basis," he added, "I ought to be possible for us to have a useful meeting and to obtain positive results."

The Prime Minister elaborated on his views about an agenda.

"There are, for example, the suggestions in the letter addressed to you on Jan. 12 by President Eisenhower, which I fully endorse."

"Despite the comments which you have made on them, these suggestions must clearly be considered further in the preparation of any agenda for a meeting of heads of governments."

Eisenhower proposed the United States and Russia agree to renounce use of their veto power in the United Nations Security Council on some issues.

Requests Accord
He also called for a Washington-Moscow accord to insure the use of outer space only for peaceful purposes. And he urged that the peoples of East Europe be given the opportunity to elect governments of their own choosing.

Macmillan did not insist on how these preparations should be carried out but put forward two alternatives in his own order of preference:

1. Foreign ministers of the United States, Britain, France and Russia should meet, both to tackle the problem of reviving deadlocked East-West disarmament negotiations and to prepare for a summit meeting. The Soviet Union opposes this.

2. Alternatively "confidential diplomatic exchanges" should be undertaken at once to prepare for a summit conference. Moscow radio said Friday the Soviet Union agreed with the U.S. view that adequate preparation was necessary, apparently endorsing this approach.

CROWE Insurance Agency presents its WEEKLY INSURANCE LETTER

Dear Friends:

The tragic accident suffered by the popular baseball catcher, Roy Campanella, prompts me to tell you how the insurance business has changed in the last five years and how Campy's automobile policy might have applied to the accident. Roy was driving a rented car which was damaged when it hit the tree. Five years ago Campy's insurance policy on his own car would not have extended to cover the damage to the rented car. Today, Campy's Family Automobile policy with collision coverage would have extended at no extra charge to cover damage to a car in his custody.

While we all fervently hope that the popular athlete will recover it is feared that he will be paralyzed for life. Five years ago one could not add disability benefits to an automobile insurance policy. Today, an employed person can add $50 per week total disability benefits and $10,000 death indemnity for only $10. Obviously, $50 per week would not be much for an athlete of Campy's ability but it could be the difference between life as a public charge and a self supporting life for the average person.

Call our office today for advice on your automobile insurance—it may be the most important call you'll ever make.

Let's Halt Crime Rise

Newspaper headlines since Jan. 1 have told of a 7.5 percent increase in crime in 1957, as reported by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The FBI disclosed that 2,756,150 major crimes were committed in the United States last year. The occurrence and persistent increase of such a large number of criminal acts, particularly among the nation's youth, is one of the sad paradoxes of our time.

It is difficult to understand how a nation, founded on the basis of equality, possessing opportunities and advantages second to none, born out of idealistic concepts and steeped heavily in the tradition of sturdy pioneers and illustrious statesmen, can produce such a lawless and destructive bunch of third-rate citizens.

Annual increases in major crimes lead one to the conclusion that many law-abiding citizens are graduating from the cat-and-mouse violations of the highway and other minor infractions into crimes which are major in character. Inroads which the forces of lawlessness are making begin in subtle ways. They begin usually in youth, are nurtured by the bad example of a father or a mother. They are aided and abetted in childhood by a lack of discipline, of lessons in simple morality and of enforced responsibility in early years.

Finally, they are brought to full blossom by the frustrations and insecurities of life. Theft and violence today are thriving on the unwittingness, the mass indifference of good citizens to recognize these evil, subtle forces which turn minor law-breakers into criminals and which foster the production of third-rate citizens.

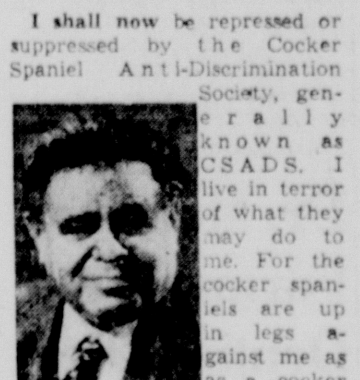

National Crime Prevention Week, which opened yesterday, is the time to start reappraising our thinking and recognizing crime as the terrible cancer on society which it really is. "Strike crime . . . before it strikes you" is a warning that should not go unheeded.

1958 Handicap Race

George Sokolsky Says . . .

Poor Cocker Spaniels

I shall now be repressed or suppressed by the Cocker Spaniel Anti-Discrimination Society, generally known as CSADS. I live in terror of what they may do to me. For the cocker spaniel are up in legs against me as a cocker spaniel hater, a man of violent prejudices, a follower of Hitler and other vile creatures.

I plead that some of my best friends are cocker spaniels. On faith, my true love is Joe, the keeshond, but my prejudices against other dogs are only skin deep. True to tell, my old dog, Brownie, now deceased and gently buried on the slope of a hill, in a grove of young hemlocks, under a blanket of petunias and sweet alyssums, was what goes by the name of a plain mutt, without significant ancestry.

Brownie was a lovable dog whose memory remains green among all who knew her because she was so gentle and kindly, so grateful for small rewards and always knowing her place. Joe is not like Brownie at all. He likes to rule and lord it over mere mortals whose blood does not go back, at least to William of Orange. Brownie would obey and be quiet; but Joe has to talk with kind, indeed, become a bore. For those who have nothing to say always want to be heard.

The cocker spaniels may be assured that I have no prejudices against any dog, no matter what its color, shape or ancestry. Even when a dog goes by such a name as Hans von Snitzenfress, it is only because some human was trying to show off. That is why I switched from Walsdaag to Joe. Joe sounds more indigenous, more like a fellow who belongs to the American Legion and drinks wet beer.

Any dog can tell by a sniff who is a phony and who is the real thing. And to dogs, such apertures as "Your Excellency" and "Your Highness" mean not a thing. Either you're a good guy or a louse and a dog somehow knows which it is by smell. He requires no introductions, no bank references, no public relations counsel, no peephole columnist's puffs.

Joe has an amazing ancestry. Only a dog or a horse or a bull could have such a perfect ancestry as the high-bred animals have. Man, alas, suffers from black sheep creeping in to the best of breeds. So that where a father is one of the most distinguished men in his line, the son might be a good-for-nothing, lying rascal whose greatest ambition is to serve as a flunky to a good-for-nothing gal.

Surely no dog would wear false colors, as some dames borrow jewelry for the occasion, the hope of the jeweler being that somebody will buy it. Also not even a poodle would like to have the color of its hair changed constantly, so that even its best friend would not know it. And if dogs were as fastidious as humans, they would constantly be changing their odors. But a constant canine can always recognize the perversions of the human mind.

I once knew a man who was so concerned about what others thought of him that he was consumed with rage and envy. He particularly hated head waiters who gave him a table in a less conspicuous spot than he was accustomed to. His wife garbed herself in all the finery she could put on herself without becoming so loaded that she could not walk. Her jewel collections were enormous beyond belief and were sometimes worn in such profusion as to seem to be imitations. She had bobbed her nose and dyed her hair, and plucked her eyebrows and slenderized her figure.

But she could never get a dog to love her or her husband. The dogs always ran away. I was once talking to a pair of their cocker spaniels who were glad to have a word with a friend.

It seemed as though they were never allowed indoors. What were they, lions or tigers or something? Dogs belong to a family and like to play with children and they dislike being ignored. As though they were just plain animals. So they ran away and, alas, one was killed by an automobile and the other came home with its tail down, because home, even among such people, is better than being killed by an automobile.

Robert S. Allen Reports . . .

One-Shot Tax Cut

Washington, Feb. 9 — The influential Joint Congressional Economic Committee is joining the intensifying demand for a "pump-priming" tax cut.

Bipartisan leaders of this committee are seriously considering a "one shot" 10 percent across-the-board income tax reduction; that is, limiting that savings to this year only.

It is estimated that would put more than $3 billion in buying power in taxpayers' pockets.

Under backstage plans, this far-reaching proposal is slated to be included in the recommendations of the Joint Committee will make in its forthcoming report on the economic state of the union. Public hearings and other deliberations have been in progress for some weeks in preparation for this important study.

Indicative of the significance of the Committee's "pump-priming" tax measure are the prominent lawmakers who privately favor it.

Foremost among them is Rep. Wilbur Mills (D.Ark.), who in addition to being a senior member of the Joint Committee is also chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, which originates all tax legislation. Others are: Rep. Wright Patman (D.Tex.), chairman of the Joint Committee; Senator John Sparkman (D.Ala.), vice chairman of the Joint Committee and head of the Senate Small Business Committee; Senator J. W. Fulbright (D.Ark.), chairman of the Banking Committee; Senator Ralph Flanders (R.Vt.), senior member of the Finance Committee, which handles tax measures.

What's Behind It — Two factors are counting strongly in the Economic Committee's favorable consideration of a "one shot" income tax cut:

Authoritative word that Treasury experts already are working on a bill for a 5 or 10 percent reduction for individuals, plus relief for small businessmen. This is to be offered as the Administration's measure if business conditions have not appreciably improved by spring.

A preliminary estimate by the Labor Department indicating that unemployment rose to around 4,500,000 last month; approximately more than 6 percent of the total labor force of the country. This disquieting information was given the Joint Committee in advance of the monthly report due this week on this matter by the Labor and Commerce Departments. Other significant highlights of this impending survey are:

In January, the number of major "recession" areas throughout the nation rose to 45 and the total of minor areas to 72. In these sections the amount of unemployment averaged from 6 to 9 percent.

By March 1, it is estimated the number of major areas will increase to 50 and minor to around 85 — the peak reached in the business slump of 1949.

Last month, Commerce-Labor reported a total of 3,374,000 unemployed in December; 5.2 percent of the estimated 67,770,000 labor force of the nation.

The forthcoming January report will list the 45 major unemployment areas as in the following states: Connecticut, Indiana, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Michigan, Missouri, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Tennessee, Washington, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

The 72 minor areas are listed in: Alabama, Connecticut, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, New Jersey, North Carolina, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Tennessee, Texas, Vermont, Virginia and West Virginia.

In January 1957, there were 19 major and 27 minor unemployment areas throughout the country.

Sparks — Lieutenant General James Gavin, who retires next month after assailing Administration military budget policies, is considering a lucrative offer from a leading New York investment firm. The Army's outgoing research and development chief would specialize in that field for this banking concern . . . More than 3,000 foreign students will attend International Students Day at Lansing, Mich., on February 27. Business leaders, labor, civic and state officials will take part in this unique project to promote "grass roots diplomacy." William M. Day, head of Michigan Bell Telephone Company, is chairman of the Citizens' Committee in charge of the undertaking . . . A total of $50,179,000.00 of government securities will have to be refinanced this year. Largest marketable issue is a 4 percent certificate totaling $11,519,000,000 that is due August 1. Second largest is a 3 1/2 percent certificate totaling $2,830,000,000 due on Dec. 1.

Defends Teacher Colleges

Henryville, Pa.

Dear Editor: As a State Teachers College alumna, may I reply to the recent Harrisburg criticism of these colleges?

A classmate and I agreed yesterday that all through the years we have heard about the background which we are supposed to have missed. And yet, as English majors, our courses included World Literature, Elizabethan Drama, Shakespeare, Short Story, Contemporary Novel, Modern Poetry, English Literature, American Literature, Composition 1 and 2, Drama, Public Speaking.

Recently I took a refresher course at a liberal arts college. The professor asked where I had received such a fine background in English. When I replied, "At East Stroudsburg," he looked quite amazed.

Certainly no college could have offered teachers with wider background than Dr. Rosenkrans, Dr. Koehler, Dr. LaRue—to name just three of my former instructors. Many of our able administrators and educators in this county started their careers as STC graduates.

No doubt there are poor teachers graduating from the teachers colleges. I doubt whether they have a monopoly on the product.

Dear Editor:

The item of "Bible Thought" in your editorial page can prove to be helpful or harmful depending on the impression left.

Take for instance that of Feb. 6th. "The Kingdom of God is within you." Lu. 17:21. As I take it according to your comment this is related to "the sub conscious mind is divine. It directs the bodily functions."

This last phrase is, I believe, correct. If anyone had neurathic (nervous) spells as I have — where the sub conscious mind controls, when, if not put under rigid control can cause one to act more like a wild animal. Let us rule out this explanation of Lu. 17:21 being "divine" and related to the Bible text—please. Your comment is irrelevant to the occasion.

The general explanation of Lu. 17:21 is that as "the kingdom of God" is accepted generally, then it will come. Many religious believing and teaching that have in their disappointment, (after 1900 years and because of the prevalence of evil) have said: Christianity is a failure—an insult to its Author.

Would Christ really say (Lu. 17:21) as above to those murderous, incorrigible opponents already adjudged to perdition? Let us rule these out also — please.

But it may be asked: what would be of what may be a reasonable explanation of Lu. 17:21? Any such must be in harmony with the context and the occasion. The newer versions and the marginal renderings are very helpful. In the margin of the ordinary Bible it is "among you" — in the Rev. V. "in the midst of you" — instead of "within you."

Emphatic Diaglott: "God's royal majesty is in your midst." Using the original Greek word-for-word it would be "the majesty of God in the midst of you is."

The New World Translation of the Greek Scriptures: "the Kingdom of God is in the midst of you." The King and kingdom are closely tied. This was Christ's answer to his opponents as to when God's Kingdom was coming. They sought to have him give a time certain — upon its failure they could prove to the populace that he was an impostor — but, his answer took them by surprise.

Emotions Differ On Heavy Snow

by Jim Riley

The biggest snow of the winter in the Pocono Mountains last Friday was greeted with mixed emotions.

Children loved it, while adults were searching for an escape route to Florida, or maybe even a flight to a warmer south.

Sleds and skis were the order of the day for the kids on Saturday, while Ma and Pa combined to shovel off the walks, clean out the driveway and dig the family jolly out of a snow bank where it was left unconcernedly to weather the storm in the best fashion possible.

Father and Mother weren't the least bit pleased with the dangerous driving conditions on Friday, but Junior found conditions almost perfect for a snow ball fight, making a snowman or just performing on the sled and skis.

Me? I love this snow. That is, I'm on the inside and it remains outside.

Carl Tewksbury, East Stroudsburg RD2, is a patient at the General Hospital of Monroe County at the present time.

Carl fractured several vertebrae doing a good turn recently.

The Hughes Printing Co. employee will be confined to bed for a long time.

Carl's injury has halted the noon-time chess games at Hughes.

Mrs. George Stoekel, 619 Main St., Stroudsburg, is a patient at the Wills Eye Hospital, Philadelphia, at present.

She is recovering from an eye injury.

We are happy to report that the recovery is moving along according to schedule.

Dingmans Ferry figures prominently in construction of the heart symbol for the Pike County Heart Committee.

The trio responsible for the "heart" are Harold O'Brien, who made the object, and Lorraine and Lucien Locke, who did the painting.

The symbol will be on the lawn of the Pike County Court House, in Milford, for the duration of the Heart Fund drive.

Floyd "Blink" Holloway, every body's buddy in the Stroudsburg, proved himself a man of valor about a week ago.

He rescued the bride's bouquet of flowers from high atop a decoration during a wedding reception.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Cobb, 16 Green St., Stroudsburg, are now vacationing in Florida, safe from the heavy snow in our area.

They made the trip by plane.

Mrs. Richard Emanuel, 623 King St., Stroudsburg, is scheduled to enter Jefferson Hospital, Philadelphia, tomorrow.

She will undergo treatment for a facial nerve condition.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Stuckey, 1809 N. Fifth St., Stroudsburg, are celebrating their 11th wedding anniversary today.

Best of wishes are certainly in order.

Bible Thought

Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, ye, you like men, be strong. I Cor. 16:13.

Paul taught by example as well as by precept. He did inspire to matchless heroism that finally won Europe to Christ in a few centuries. His letters are still needed. They are like trumpet calls.

Wrigley For President

With very inferior talent, owner P. K. Wrigley managed to balance the Chicago Cubs' budget last season. The club reported a net profit of $357, which figures out to a little less than a dollar a day. This may not seem impressive to some people, but it is better than most recent presidents have done. Mr. Eisenhower, for instance, seems headed into two years of deficit spending.

So, by comparison, Mr. Wrigley looks so good that we are proposing him for president. If he can just keep the United States ahead by even so much as a buck a day, he will have done better than Roosevelt, Truman, or Eisenhower most years.

We don't want to do anything to wreck the Cubs ball club, assuming that process could be carried further, but we think that when Mr. Wrigley goes to the White House he might take along Cholly Grimm as secretary of health, education and welfare. Grimm's first act should be to trade Harold Stassen to Wichita Falls in the Texas league. This would be a much less disastrous trade than those customarily made by the Cubs.—Chicago Tribune.

The Pennsylvania Story

Cinder-Buying Scandal

(First of a series of two) Harrisburg—What brings an investigation — or probe — to boil? What makes it tick? Who's behind them? Do they mean anything?

The current cinder purchase scandal — centering at the moment in the Westmoreland County area — facing the Leader Administration is a timely illustration.

It is important to Pennsylvania taxpayers too, for if Auditor General Charles C. Smith is correct it will show that the Commonwealth—that is, the taxpayers—will have been fleeced out of a cool half-million dollars or more by payments made for highway cinders never delivered.

Digging under the cinder ruckus pile and the political bloopings between the Democratic Leader Administration and the Republican Auditor General's department, certain facts are worth noting which no amount of political blather can obscure.

To begin with, one important point that should be borne in mind is the fact that the State Auditor General is an elective—not an appointive office—with the AG elected every four years in a statewide election just as the Governor is elected.

Thus the Auditor General is responsible to no one other than Pennsylvanians themselves.

Pennsylvania's constitution drafters had one thought in mind when they set up the office in this manner. As the official "watchdog" of the state's financial operations — auditor of accounts—the office remains independent of control of an administration.

As to Auditor General's of the past, they have run the gamut as to type — weak, strong, easy-going, knucklerapping, do-nothing hedgers, and of course political opportunists.

The discomfiting spectre of an AG of opposing political faith to the administration—as is now the case—is not new to Pennsylvania.

Republican Governor Arthur H. James of the early 1940's did bitter battle with Democratic fiscal officers as charge after charge was leveled at the administration.

The situation is the same now—only the tables are reversed.

The charges themselves are relatively unimportant. It is the facts that count.

The Auditor General's office itself is not a prosecuting agency. It does not have that power. It checks and audits accounts.

Here is example of the manner in which material delivery tickets covering the delivery of highway cinders and other "anti-skid abrasives" have been turned in by district offices of the State Department of Highways to department in Harrisburg and forwarded to the State Auditor General in substantiation of a purchase order. Of 15 check-points to be filled in, only four actually have been filled in and one of those — the net weight — incorrectly.

ities in these accounts of various departments of state government provide the leads — which for development and possible prosecution must be turned over to the State Department of Justice currently under control of the Democratic Leader Administration.

Sloppy and inept administrative practices and procedures are breeding places for corrupt practices and under-the-table financial manipulations.

Again, Pennsylvania's current highway cinder scandal illustrates the point — where painstakingly sloppy operations sinned state auditors, much to the political embarrassment of the administration.

Fantastic though it may seem the Department of Highways has been processing and approving cinder delivery tickets that provide proof of delivery and the amount, devoid of essential specified information that opens the way for wholesale skulduggery.

For example, among cinder delivery tickets checked by this reporter, missing was

Just Between Us — —

—By Bobby Westbrook

Most of us are the heroines — or heroes — of our own life's drama. We have visualized for ourselves a certain character role, and play it to the hilt. Sweetness and light, or breezy and outspoken, or deep and mysterious, we go merrily along — and if we're not fooling the public we sure do a good job of fooling ourselves.

Besides, for the most part, our audience is so engrossed in their own performance that they haven't time to point out the flaws they've noticed in ours.

It's only during periods of enforced isolation — like being snowed in for a weekend — when we have to be our own sole audience that those flaws split the whole character wide open. Merry as a cricket, busy as a bee and brave as lion — that's the role I usually see myself in. How!

After a long weekend of looking at myself, I'm forced to the realization that I'm about as merry as a bear with a sore head, as busy as the torpid wasps that go crawling about unheated attics in winter, and so brave that I'm frightened even to look in the dark recesses of my own mind and take to television or reading as an insomniac takes to sleeping pills or a scared child to blankets over his head.

I like me in public much better, and I'd rather leave the self-contemplative to saints and yogis. Besides, I've been looking forward to seeing Anne Meredith's wedding. The whole community chorus to sing for it, and the whole town dressed in their best bib and tucker — also ear muffs and hip boots, if they were wise.

White fur muffs for the bride's attendants certainly matched the weather, and I'll bet they'll be tempted to carry them today to work. Brrr, but it's cold.

Sort of a heartwarming note, however, about the Youngkin's new daughter. The first girl in the Youngkin family in forty-some years. Betcha she'll be the most be-ruffled, girl you ever saw.

Holiday In New York

Mrs. Edward Foster and Mrs. Katherine Hewitt, both of Drexel Ave., Stroudsburg, returned home yesterday following a three-day holiday in New York City.

While in New York they took in the Broadway show "My Fair Lady" and through the courtesy of Robert Kintner, NBC executive and formerly of Stroudsburg, viewed the Jack Parr television show. They also visited Radio City and were present at several TV productions.

Scout Troop Varies Program With Service

Members of Troop 32, Intermediate Girl Scouts have had a busy schedule. At their meeting last Wednesday they planned their part in the cookie sales, and planned to begin work on their horsewomen badge. An investiture service was held for Susan Bensinger, a new member of the troop.

They also learned Girl Scout songs under the leadership of Sylvia Smith, a senior Scout. At their January 22 meeting, Toni Helgren, a sixth grade student visited the troop and spoke of Sweden where she was born. She described their holiday customs and the similarities and differences of Scouting here and in Sweden. Refreshments of fairy kisses and punch were served.

The troop and their leaders aided in the heart fund on February 1 by delivering posters and stickers to Stroudsburg businesses and stores. They met at the Candy Kitchen for treats afterward.

Members of the troop are Marilee Cummings, Sharon Belcher, Sally Shanley, Cathy Kintner, Naura Maloney, Sharon Henningson, Sally Altomose, Kathy Marsh, Donna Meixell, Kathy Parnell, Donna Edinger, Cathy Wells, Carole Saunders, Kay McNeil, Mary Jane Drake, Linda Pansy, Susan Bensinger, and Denise Felker.

Mrs. Phyllis Marsh is troop leader with Mrs. Dorothy Belcher and Mrs. Florna Felker as assistants.

Doctor Warns Of Danger Of Home Poisoning

Dr. Edwin Abrahamson spoke to 100 per cent attendance of the Y-Graduate and several guests at the meeting last week at the YMCA on the theme, "Accidents in the Home."

Among the statistics he cited were: accidents cause more deaths than disease between the ages of one and 15. Poisoning accounts for the most number of deaths between one and five, with insect sprays, furniture polish, moth balls and medicines as chief offenders.

Small children, chewing on painted surfaces sometimes contract chronic lead poison, he said. Aspirin and even vitamins in excess amounts and iron tablets have proven toxic to small children.

The first thing a parent should do when a child has eaten something toxic is to call the family doctor, prepared to tell him what substance it was and some idea of the quantity. If the ingredients are not listed on the bottle, read the manufacturer's name and address, he advised. Some towns have clearing houses for known poisonous ingredients.

A discussion followed his talk. Mrs. Robert Shaw presided at the meeting with devotion led by Joyce Leida and Florence Luckey.

Refreshments in the Valentine motif were served by the committee: Shirley Congdon, Dorothy Andrews, Shirley Detrick, and Lillian Bergman. The next meeting will be a reunion of past members.

The Wyckoff Shopper the friendly store Wyckoff

I haven't seen that Busy, Busy, Busy Day commercial for quick desserts recently on TV . . . but I have certainly been acting out the role in what I choose to call my "private" life. I suppose no one really has a private life . . . not if she has a job and three children. But even the busiest days can be delightfully compensating.

Take Thursday, for instance. At noon there was a meeting of the newly organized Pocono Mountain Retail Advertising Club with Wyckoff's well represented by Arthur Widmer, advertising manager; Mabel Anderson, and myself, of the regular advertising staff, and Betty Bartholomew, our store shopper. Betty protested that she might not be eligible . . . but I argued that she is, for she has hundreds of direct-mail and telephone contacts with Wyckoff customers both here and abroad. (That word "abroad" is not used ill advisedly either, for former Monroe Countians scattered the world over use the mails as a flying carpet to Wyckoff's.)

Seated next to me at luncheon was Marcia Clapp wearing one of her "mad, New York hats" — an adorable, but rather startling, turban of black satin with a swooping cluster of pearls that jutted out dangerously at one side, reminding one of a snowdrop bush in full bloom. Right now Marcia's big enthusiasm is fountains, both stationary and portable, spouting anything from water to perfume. Bet if she had her way we'd have one on every street corner . . . and I for one would love it.

In the evening the executive committee of Business and Professional Women's Club met at the home of Edna Monti, and everyone was thrilled by the announcement that Monroe County's Home for the Aging is now an accomplished fact . . . a Business and Professional Women's dream come true. Since the idea was advanced approximately ten years ago, the Beeps have given 2000.00 or more to the project. This became a county-wide endeavor some time ago, enlisting the support of other interested organizations and directed by a committee of which my employer is chairman.

Mr. Wyckoff tells me the down payment on the home was made with Business and Professional Women's money . . . which is a thrilling reward to the girls who spearheaded the project at its inception. Surely it is a wonderful thing to have such a home . . . and the interest of everyone in its support and growth is most sincerely needed.

Edna's home is beautiful. Being located at the very top of the reservoir hill in Stroudsburg, it commands a view that is absolutely breathtaking. The architect has taken advantage of the present fad for huge, windows to make full use of the natural splendors outside. It was rather a jolt to leave this beautiful ivory tower and return to earth . . . and I felt something like a bird whose wings had been clipped.

Incidentally, if your wings are clipped and you are a down-to-earth gal in search of down-to-earth values, visit Wyckoff's today. We have a wealth of new merchandise at positively stunning low prices, and many clearance items that we're practically giving away.

Verel Keeps Texture And Resilience
A NEW magic carpet for the modern homemaker has just appeared on the home furnishings scene and is available at Sears Floor covering Dept. at Wyckoff-Sears in Stroudsburg.
It's a tufted loop pile carpeting in a random tweed pattern made of a new modified acrylic fiber. This new fiber, called Verel, is reported to have all the qualities of wool plus added features.
According to Shimer Kubie of Sears Floor covering Dept., the new carpet fiber retains its texture and overall resilience despite wet or dry cleanings and is exceptionally resistant to mildew and mold. It is also completely nonallergenic and moth proof.
Known as "Radiance," the new floor covering reflects the current trend to tweed. It has a distinctive random tweed design with unusual highlights created by the unique "slub" texture of the yarn.
Double-Back
In addition to its wearing and cleaning qualities, "Radiance" is made with an exclusive latex-bonded "double-back" which virtually eliminates stretching, buckling and creeping.
Available in 9, 12 and 15-foot widths, "Radiance" carpet is currently being introduced and sold exclusively by Sears, Roebuck and Co. It is offered in five Harmony House color groups: Dawn Grey, Parchment Beige, Parchment Brown, Spice Beige and Ming Blue.
The new carpet fiber, Verel, was developed by Tennessee Eastman, a division of Eastman Kodak Co. It was selected for "Radiance" after Sears' own laboratory completed exhaustive tests which established the superiority of Verel as a carpet fiber.

Handy Place To Hang Laundry
AN EXTRA shower curtain rod over the center of the bathtub provides a convenient place for the housewife to hang hand-laundry, raincoats and other drippy items to dry, suggests the National Association of Plumbing Contractors. Wet garments drip in the tub instead of on the floor, and the shower curtain conceals the laundry if company drops in.
This "wife-saving" suggestion from NAPC also lets the men in the family shave without having to fight their way through a jungle of lingerie.
The birthstone for May is the emerald.

Summer Menace Becomes Wintertime Indoor Asset

HUMIDITY, a summer menace, is a blessing in keeping a home comfortable during the wintertime, according to Walter Stevens of Stroudsburg Furnace Co., W. Main St., Stroudsburg.
Excessively dry air in a home can be a real pest. Its symptoms: frizzy, dried-out, "electrified" hair; bleary, smarting eyes, nasal passage irritation, cracked, chapped lips, itchy, flaky skin, dry-sore throat.
Humidity will eliminate these unsavory symptoms.
Spray Humidifier
This can be accomplished automatically by using a new type spray humidifier called Humidispay just introduced by Lennox Industries Inc., Stevens added. This unit is self-regulating to provide the right amount of moisture in relation to the quantity of heated air introduced into the house.
Moisture added to the air goes to work immediately improving the health of the people living in the house by keeping membranes of the nose and throat moist to remain active repelling contamination and infection, reducing colds and coughs.
People will often experience a cool feeling even with room temperature at or above an ideal 75 degrees.
The reason, says Stevens, is that in the dry air found in most homes during the winter moisture evaporates so rapidly it cools the skin to the point where one is uncomfortable even though temperatures are above-normal.
Fuel bills, too, are affected. Adding the correct amount of moisture to the air eliminates turning up the thermostat—only to make the air even hotter, drier and more uncomfortable.

Lawrence In Favor Of Dilworth

HARRISBURG, Feb. 9 (AP)—Pittsburgh Mayor David Lawrence considers Mayor Richardson Dilworth of Philadelphia a stronger candidate for Democratic choice for governor than Lt. Gov. Roy E. Furman.

In an interview appearing in today's Harrisburg Patriot-News, Lawrence said, "I think Dilworth is stronger than anybody that's been announced."

However, the Pittsburgh mayor and Democratic national committeeman made no outright endorsement.

His comment on Furman, some observers felt, smacked of the "he's-a-wonderful-fellow-but..." attitude. Said Lawrence:

"Well, Furman's a likable fellow, a good looking fellow, he makes friends freely; he's a fellow you like to be with and a lot of people like him."

Lawrence came out for Genevieve Blatt as incumbent candidate for secretary of internal affairs. He was non-committal about who should run for lieutenant governor.

Rumor Opinion

Lawrence was asked his opinion on the rumored Republican candidacy of Harold E. Stassen, presidential disarmament aide, for the governorship.

Stassen would be to his liking, Lawrence said, because "he'd be easier to beat."

Lawrence made these other statements during the interview: Dr. William D. McClelland, Allegheny County coroner, would not do as well as he did in 1954 in carrying southwestern Pennsylvania in his unsuccessful bid for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination against Gov. Lawrence.

Furman was the fourth choice for lieutenant governor of Democratic slatemakers in 1954 after Horace Culbertson of Juniata County, Stuart Culbertson of Crawford County and McClelland.

Dilworth showed a "very healthy and wholesome" attitude in saying he was wrong in advocating a lockout decision by the governor in the 1954 Westinghouse strike. Lawrence wouldn't discuss the decision itself since it is in the courts.

Leader made a mistake during the 1955-56 legislative tax fight in insisting that he would veto the Republican-sponsored sales tax. Leader should have admitted that he lost the tax battle in mid-1955. The Legislature stayed in session for nearly 17 months and passed the sales tax anyway.

A. L. Meyers Retires From Business

ALPHORD L. Meyers, senior partner of the Meyers Furniture Co., located in the Masonic Hall Building, East Stroudsburg, retired from business last month at which time his brother and co-partner, W. Earl Meyers, purchased his share of the business.

The business, one of the oldest and best known in Monroe County, was founded in 1910 by their father, William A. Meyers, at 48 Washington St. in the present East Stroudsburg National Bank Building.

In 1927 the business was moved to the Masonic Hall Building where it is still situated.

Alphord Meyers was associated with his father in the furniture business from its inception. He has been with the company ever since except for a period between 1918 and 1926 when he was employed by the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western R. R. Co. and served in the armed forces during the First World War.

Manager Position

In 1926 he returned to business and served as manager during his father's illness. After his demise a partnership was formed with his mother, the late Anna L. Meyers.

W. Earl Meyers entered the business in 1928. In 1944 he took over his mother's interest and a partnership was then formed with his brother Alphord.

The Meyers Furniture Co. in its 48 year existence has steadily expanded until it is now one of the major businesses of Monroe County.

Furman Calls On Dilworth To Make Public Statement

WAYNESBURG, Feb. 9 (AP)—Lt. Gov. Roy E. Furman, a candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, said today he thinks Philadelphia Mayor Richardson Dilworth should state publicly if he plans to seek the Democratic nomination too.

Furman expressed his view in a prepared statement released at his home in Waynesburg. He said:

"I think Mr. Dilworth should come out from behind the bush and clarify his position so that, he, too, shall be forced to waive the political immunities I waived when I became an announced candidate."

House Seeks Delay In TV Plan

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—A House committee today asked the Federal Communications Commission to hold off on its plans for a trial of pay television until Congress can act on the issue.

Rep. Harris (D-Ask) told reporters that the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, of which he is chairman, had passed a resolution to that effect in closed session today.

Such a resolution is not binding—it expresses the committee's opinion, a committee member, told reporters.

Rep. Leo W. O'Brien (N-Y) porters that if the FCC should go ahead with a pay TV trial, he assumed members with bills to prohibit pay TV could press for quick committee action.

Protest Flood. The committee has been flooded with protests against pay TV. An aide said 50,000 letters had come in during the past two weeks and estimated that 999 out of 1,000 were against pay TV. Committee sources said some television stations apparently had asked their watchers to write.

Most pay systems so far developed involved scramble broadcasts made viewable by a decoding device attached to the receiver and activated by deposit of a coin or through a telephone connection.

The FCC announced last October that it would consider application for pay TV on a three-year trial basis but would take no action prior to March 1.

According to Harris, the resolution said it was the feeling of the committee that the public interest would not be served by the test because "such operations might lead at least a partial blackout of the present system in particular communities if not throughout the United States."

Also, the committee was not satisfied that the FCC had authority to license pay TV operations, the resolution said.

METROPOLITAN EDISON COMPANY

OFF THE RECORD

By Bob Clark
Sports Editor

TWO changes affecting high school and college basketball teams, are in the wind, a release by the Executive Committee of the National Basketball Committee says.

One proposal calls for the reduction of free throwing shooting and the other would lessen "jumping jack" tactics in the restricted zone.

The proposals up for survey stipulate officially the elimination of all free throws for a common foul until the offending team has committed four (high school) and six (college) personal fouls in each half.

Second, permit a player to remain in the restricted zone (12-foot free throw lane) for five seconds instead of the present three.

With regard to the foul throw elimination, high schools now use a single free throw regulation until after four personal fouls are called. In college the number is six, before a bonus shot is awarded.

The whole idea behind the proposals is to cut down on the number of charity tosses and Number two, allow pivot-men, especially, more time in the bottom part of the key.

The committee distributed the questionnaires among the nation's coaches—high schools and colleges. They will weigh the results in their meetings March 23-24 at Louisville, Ky.

We are in accord with the slashing of the number of fouls after watching countless of games actually turning into foul contests. On the extension of time in the lane, it seems the big man who they were trying to stop gets a little more time to work his height to advantage.

With some of the "goons" who can hardly move anyway, the passing of such a rule will be a reprieve—two seconds or three to five, or just enough to turn a close game into a rout.

For the information of Pennsylvania State Teachers College Conference fans here are the individual records of the not too old circuit.

Don Kistler, of Kutztown, holds the single game high of 47 points. Next high was 42 by Jim Kennedy, California; Dave Dintiman, Lock Haven; Clyde West, Cheney; George McClelland, Shippensburg; and Jim Elishop, Millersville.

High scorer for one season is John Parker, Millersville, with 289 points. Top point-getter, college career is Parker with 984 (four seasons).

High average scorer one season, Kennedy, California, 29.6 per game. Second is Connie Palumbo, Slippery Rock, 29.

Team record holder for a season is Bloomsburg STC (1956-57) 1140 points in 13 games.

In the balloting for the East team of the Eastern Professional All-Star Basketball League, All-stars, Easton's Hal (King) Lear, Wally Choice and Al Gaines are running one, two, three in votes for the league classic at Wilkes-Barre, Feb. 26.

The East squad will be made up of eight players from Easton, Scranton, Wilkes-Barre and Williamsport. The West is made up of all-stars from Sunbury, Wilkes-Barre, Hazleton and Reading.

Denny Roth, the pitcher who led the Pocono Mountain Baseball League, and winters as basketball coach at Lehigh Valley, is second in the voting for a berth on the Western squad.

Warriors Win

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 9 (AP)—Paul Arizin sunk 25 points and led the Philadelphia Warriors to a 105-83 victory over St. Louis Hawks today in a National Basketball Assn. game before a father-and-son day crowd of 5,283 at Convention Hall.

Lopes Easy Winner

Eagles' Defense Ties Up Eastburg

NAZARETH — Nazareth High's man-to-man defense was too pressing for East Stroudsburg here Saturday night as the Blue Eagles maneuvered to a 72-52 triumph over the Cavaliers.

Holding the Cavaliers to just three field goals in the first half — two in the first quarter and one in the second — Nazareth struck behind Connie Shimer to hand Eastburg its second loss in three games in the Lehigh-Northampton League's second half chase.

The victory was the third in four games for Nazareth and enabled the Concrete Borough five to move into second place behind Parkland in the L-N standing.

Alex Sydelnik, a junior, and Captain Dale Metzgar, a senior, were the only Cavaliers able to solve the Eagles' defense with any consistency. Sydelnik enjoyed the best night of his short career.

Eastburg varsity career by netting 21 markers. Metzgar was the only other Cavalier to hit the double figures—14.

Shimer took game individual laurels with 24. He was aided by Eagles Bill Clewell, Larry Lewis and Tom Buuss with 12, 11 and 10 respectively.

Nazareth bounced away to a 19-6 lead in the opening quarter, and held 32-17 pad at halftime, and 50-34 spread at the three-quarter mark.

The game was a make-up of Friday's postponed tilt because of hazardous driving conditions. East Stroudsburg's junior varsity also met defeat, bowing to the Little Eagles, 74-26.

Here's the picture after the latest second-half league outings:
In the West:
Dist. 6—Second-ranked Windber dealt Tri-County League leader Westmont a 7-6 setback in a crucial meeting between the two. The loss left Westmont, which had knocked Johnston out of the district race, precariously in first place with a 7-2 record.

Independent defending district champion Altoona took District 9 power Punksatway, 73-53, to run out its impressive win string.

Sharon Bows
Dist. 7 — Alliquipp upset state champion Sharon, 44-40 to move into a challenging position in the WPIAL's power-packed Sect. III.

At the same time, Farrell, which was tied with Sharon for the section lead, failed to take advantage of the latter's loss, losing itself to Ford City, 48-44.

While that cross-section clash might not have hurt Farrell in its district, it boosted Ford City's stock even higher.

Ford City, undefeated Sect. I leader, now appears the toughest team in the WPIAL.

Dist. 9—With Punksatway idle in league action, second-ranked DuBois had a chance to move in closer in its try for the Dist. 9 crown. Fourth-ranked Kane had other ideas and set back DuBois, 52-35, Punksatway remains first with a 7-0 record; DuBois slipped to a 7-2 card even while remaining a safe second.

Dist. 10—Erie Strong Vincent, the highly-touted defending district champ, had a bitter pill to swallow. With the chance to sew up Sect. I and the Erie city title on the same night, it saw the end of a 10-game winning streak.

Erie Academy turned the trick, 50-43. Erie Tech lost to East, 63-62. An ESV victory paired with a Tech win would have given ESV two titles.

Sect. II power Meadville also had bad luck. Tied with Titusville at 5-1 for the section lead, it slipped to second place. The 57-46 victory by Titusville made that team prime contender in the section.

Sailer, the whiz from Kitzueh who doubles as a movie actor, also won the giant slalom. He finished second in the slalom.

Sailer finished with only .36 penalty points in the combined rankings.

Wallace (Bud) Werner of Steamboat Springs, Colo., considered almost in Sailer's class in the downhill competition, fell at the last of 17 control gates and finished in tears. His time was 2:48.7, no better than 37th in the field and dumping him back to seventh in the combined time rankings, which are based on average performances in the slalom, giant slalom and downhill.

It was a sad day all around for the American contingent. It easily the worst day for Yank forces in the entire competition. Dave Gorsuch of Climax, Colo., was the leading American in the downhill placings. He finished 16th in 2:39.4.

Upsets Feature Keystone Schoolboy Basketball Scene

HARRISBURG, Feb. 9 (AP)—Upsets marked the Pennsylvania scholastic basketball race in latest action, most of them in the West.

The most notable cases were Erie Strong Vincent and defending state champion Sharon. Carlisle also felt the sting of defeat.

But some challengers—DuBois in Dist. 9 and Waynesboro in Dist. 3—were knocked for unexpected losses. So was Westmont in Dist. 6.

In the East, the picture was different. Powers such as Chester, Bethlehem and Williamsport rolled over their opponents in the style most observers have come to expect of them.

Penn State, UCLA Okay Grid Series

UNIVERSITY Park, Pa. — University of California at Los Angeles is the newest addition to the Penn State football schedule.

These two events will collide for the first time at University Park in 1963. The two teams will meet again at Los Angeles in 1964.

These engagements will pit the Nittany Lions against a West Coast team for the first time since the Washington State home-and-home agreement in 1947 and 1948. Penn State won both games.

Bent Washington
Previously, the Lions had played and defeated the University of Washington at Seattle in 1921. Subsequently, California upset the Lions 14-3 in the Rose Bowl inaugural at Pasadena on January 1, 1923.

Penn State now plays its home games in 30,000-capacity Beaver Field. Long range plans hint, however, that the stadium may be enlarged and moved to the Eastern periphery of the campus in the early '60s.

The Uclans play their home games in the 103,000-capacity Memorial Coliseum at Los Angeles.

Breakfast Club To Bowl Today

THE Breakfast Club Bowling League will resume action tonight at Harmon's Recreation at 8:15 o'clock.

Schedule is as follows:
Alley one and two — Bill Puzio vs. DePue's Gas Service.
Alleys three and four — Chub's Restaurant vs. Pocono Shoe Mfg. Co.
Alleys five and six — Schimmel's Store vs. Bartonsville Hotel.

Bushkill To Make Final Try Today

BUSHKILL will make a final attempt to reorganize for the 1958 Pocono Mountain Baseball League season today at a meeting at Lantz Store, East Stroudsburg, starting at 8 p.m.

Team representatives said that unless a full turnout is present for today's session plans to reorganize will be abandoned.

Don't Rush Space Travel

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—Don't be in a hurry to book space ship travel reservations to the planets. Even if you got there you might find conditions rather unpleasant.

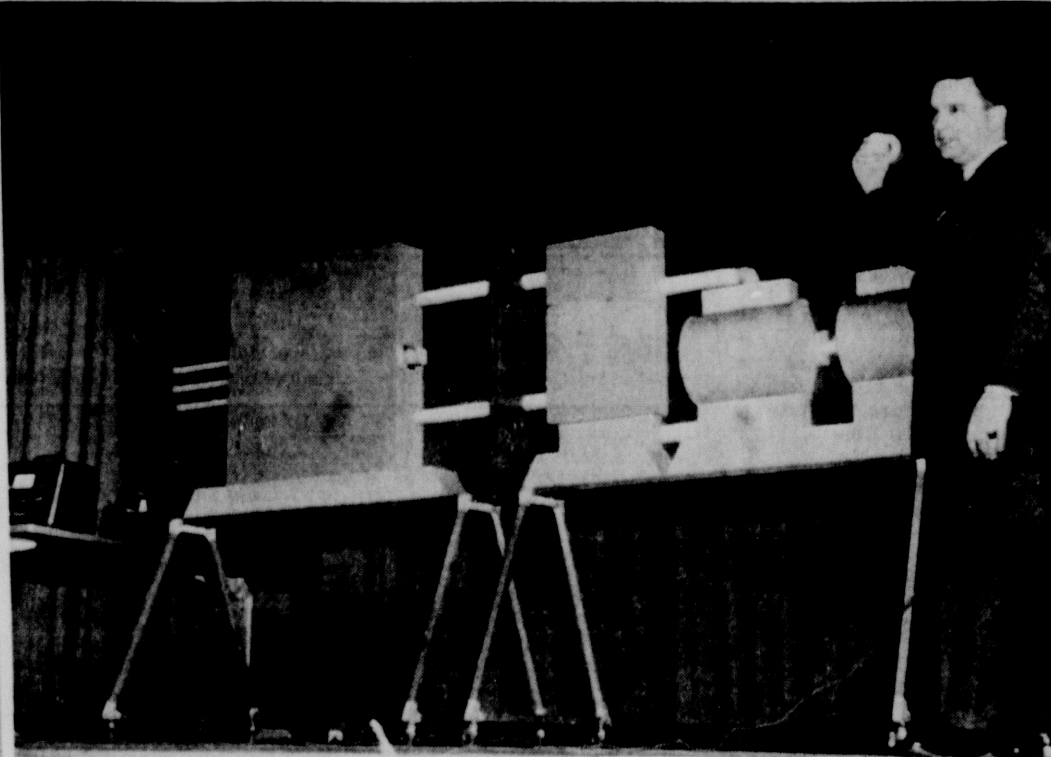

Here's a summary of what you might expect, as furnished by the Bureau of Mines:

Mercury: There is no "observational evidence" of an atmosphere on Mercury.

Venus: Observations show conclusively that Venus possesses an abundant atmosphere—of carbon dioxide, which is hardly breathable. No evidences of free oxygen or water have been detected.

Carbon Dioxide
Mars: Observation by the Mt. Wilson Observatory show that the Martian atmosphere cannot contain much oxygen, but there is plenty of carbon dioxide.

Jupiter: Pretty cold here, minus 120 degrees centigrade to be exact. The whole planet is encased in a shell of ice 16,000 miles thick. The atmosphere contains ammonia and methane.

News Analyst Feels Series Of Booby Traps Hidden Behind Soviet Summit Talk Plans

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst

HIDDEN behind the persistent Soviet clamor for a summit conference is a series of booby traps. To accept such a conference without careful advance negotiation and preparation would be for the United States to invite new and costly defeats in the cold war.

The Communists industriously stacked the cards in advance. Moscow wants the United States to negotiate in those areas of tension in which, it says, there is some hope of agreement.

What Issues?
Your speech, bearing and making issues? They are hardly insignificant. One is the Middle East. Another is the propaganda war. The Russian proposals in both instances are loaded.

Soviet Premier Bulganin proposes "renunciation of force in the solution of questions concerning the Middle East" as an agenda item for the summit. This is like the classic ploy: "Do you still beat your wife?" If the United States accepted this item, it would indicate that there had been a possibility that it would use force in the Middle East. If it rejected the item, the United States would be in the position of indicating force still might be used. In any event, the item would put the West on the defensive and the Russians in the position of big brother to the Middle East.

With regard to Propaganda, Bulganin asked discussion of an end to "the unbridled war propaganda conducted in several western countries." He asked the West "unequivocally and determinedly to condemn war propaganda and attempts to camouflage instigations to war by hypocritical references to freedom of speech and the press."

This blandly assumes the only danger to peace comes from the West. But should the West want to discuss Communist activities, in this field, the question becomes an internal affair of the states concerned.

In Letter
Bulganin conceded in his letter to President Eisenhower there was little hope a summit conference could do anything positive toward solution of the major international problems. But he said it might make a start, and this is the start he proposed:

Education Discussion Draws Heavy Fire

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—Sen. Allott (R-Colo.) fired a charge of disgraceful conduct at Sen. Morse

(D-Ore.) today in an argument over aid to education.

The argument took place in the Senate Education Committee where Secretary of Welfare Folsom presented President Eisenhower's four-year, $1,200,000 school program.

Morse called the program completely inadequate, and said he was shocked that the administration doesn't know what the needs are.

He said one scientist had told him that the United States has lost a whole generation of students because of lack of school facilities.

"Why doesn't the President ask Congress to measure up to this situation?" he asked.

Allott thereupon accused Morse of using the committee hearings for petty partisan politics. He said he considered it a disgrace to use this committee as a forum for such a purpose.

"Very Shocked"
"I'm very shocked and sorry to hear the speech of the senator from Oregon," Allott said.

The administration bill provides, among other things, for 10,000 scholarships a year for exceptionally able high school graduates and 605 million dollars in federal funds to strengthen the teaching of science and mathematics in public schools.

Chairman Hill (D-Ala.) is pushing a bill to provide four times as many scholarships. Indications point to a committee bill calling for much higher spending than the President asked.

Folsom said the Eisenhower administration has deferred, but not abandoned, its proposals for aid to school construction.

Sen. McNamara (D-Mich.) argued that the country needs more school buildings. Folsom pointed out that the House had refused to go along with a construction program.

That didn't satisfy McNamara, who said the administration stand amounted to timidity on the part of the government.

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States came out against the Folsom plan for scholarships and education grants to states, and in favor of the work of the National Science Foundation in financing teacher training and research fellowships.

Eisenhower asked in his budget message for a total of 140 million dollars for the National Science Foundation, of which 79 million would be included in the over-all four-year program of aid.

Hardy Church Holds Spot In History

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

A SMALL but hardy church today holds a unique place in the annals of Protestantism. Among such denominations, it's the oldest.

"We're sometimes called the 'Mother of the Reformation,'" said the Rev. Archille Deodato, leader of the ancient Christian group which emerged far back in the Middle Ages.

Its name, the Waldensians, its birthplace was in the mountain-ringed valleys of northern Italy and southeastern France.

Moderator
The Rev. Mr. Deodato, the church's moderator for seven years, is in this country for a two-month speaking tour.

"We have very close ties to many American denominations," he said.

The Waldensians have played an unusual role in the age-old drama of Christianity.

Contrary to the popular view that Protestantism arose abruptly in the 1500s when Martin Luther broke with Roman Catholicism, there were numerous forerunners throughout church history, the Rev. Mr. Deodato noted.

The Waldensians, he said, were simply part of a "long stream of Christian thought reacting against the worldly attitude of the official church" after it was established by the Roman Empire in the fourth century.

But among these movements, the oldest survivor on a continuous, organized basis is the little band from Italy's fertile, wooded northern valleys.

Although tracing their roots to the previous century, it was in 1170 that Peter Waldo, a rich textile merchant, gave the Waldensians their founding methods and momentum.

Conversation
This happened after he had a conversation with a priest about Jesus and the rich young ruler who declined to give up his wealth to follow the master.

Deeply affected, Waldo gave all his fortune to the poor, and went forth as a barefooted, rough-clad preacher.

To the Roman Catholic Church, it was a heretical movement. Repeated attempts were made to suppress it, by government and church. Over the years, thousands were slain, or imprisoned.

The persecutions scattered many Waldensians across the Continent, and at one time, a huge massacre sent all their small remnants into Switzerland for haven. But they soon came back to their beloved valleys.

Thus, in the travail of martyrdoms, the little church kept alive. The Rev. Mr. Deodato said its main doctrinal emphasis today still is much as it was originally, stressing an "open Bible" with the right of everyone to read and interpret it, without clerical authority over belief.

Two Sacraments
The church also recognizes only two sacraments—baptism and communion, and holds that salvation is by faith alone, and not merited by works.

These tenets were echoed later in the Protestant Reformation. At that time, Waldensians were in contact with the reformers.

"We feel our work predated the spread of the Reformation," the Rev. Mr. Deodato said. "You can find tracks of the Waldensians in all countries long before the Reformation."

He estimated there now are 50,000 Waldensians in Italy, about 10,000 in southern France that merged into the Reformed Church there, about 1,200 in Switzerland, and 150,000 in Uruguay and Argentina.

In this country, the town of Valdese, N.C., was founded by Waldensians.

Their churches, and Waldensian congregations in Chicago, have merged with Presbyterians, but a New York congregation still remains part of the Italian church synod, with headquarters in Rome and northern Torre Pellice.

The church goes in strongly for running schools and hospitals for the poor.

The clergymen said that in the whole Christian church, "we like to think of ourselves as the leaven in the loaf."

Small Auto Manufacturer Calls For Limit On Power

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—American Motors President George Romney urged Congress today to split up the power of the corporate and labor giants in the automobile industry. He also contended the people are demanding smaller cars.

Romney, whose company produces the Rambler, recommended legislation requiring General Motors and Ford to break up into smaller companies. He also urged that the United Auto Workers Union be compelled to divide its bargaining forces.

Such concentration of economic power should be limited, Romney told the Senate Antitrust and Monopoly subcommittee investigating pricing policies in the auto industry.

Romney predicted this spring's auto wage bargaining may send another block-buster chain reaction wage-price spiral across the nation unless his proposals are adopted. He said he regarded the breakdowns in both management and labor power as equally important.

Commenting on the testimony at Miami Beach, Fla., a UAW spokesman said Romney has an exaggerated and erroneous estimate of the union's power in the industry. He added that Romney's troubles stem from his competitors.

The spokesman said the union's collective bargaining proposals, which include a demand that the industry share its profits with the workers, are noninflationary and would help rather than hurt the smaller producers such as American Motors.

Romney's company is one of the two relatively small independents still turning out cars.

To curb what he called union monopolies, Romney suggested that power to bargain with big firms in any basic industry be lodged with unions exclusively representing the employees of a single employer.

He also proposed that a company be compelled to split itself when it approaches a dominant place in a basic industry. The breakup point, he said, should come when a firm exceeds 35 per cent of the total sales in its industry; or if it is engaged in more than one basic industry, 25 per cent.

Romney said his proposal would make several new companies out of the Big Three, referring to Ford Motor Co., General Motors Corp., and Chrysler Corp.

Walter Issues Praise For ICEM Work

REPRESENTATIVE Francis E. Walter recently addressed a special planning session of a six-nation group (Australia, Brazil, Canada, Italy, Netherlands and the United States, currently assembled in Washington).

The purpose was preparation of financial and operational plans for the Intergovernmental Committee for European Migration, with permanent headquarters at Geneva, Switzerland.

The Intergovernmental Committee for European Migration, an organization composed of 27 nations, was created in 1951 and has since that time moved overseas from Europe over 800,000 refugees and migrants. They have come from over-populated countries and provided for their permanent resettlement.

Rep. Walter acts as a United States delegate for the meetings of ICEM's Council.

In addressing the six-nation session, Walter praised ICEM for the organization's efficient performance in the crisis created by the large number of Hungarian refugees who, after the crushing of the Hungarian rebellion in 1956, entered Austria and Yugoslavia.

Of the 170,000 Hungarian refugees who found temporary asylum in Austria, well over 133,000 were moved from Austria to countries of resettlement, and all of the 19,000 Hungarian refugees who fled to Yugoslavia were evacuated by ICEM from that country and assisted in finding asylum in countries of the free world.

"If ICEM ever needed conclusive evidence justifying its existence, the magnificent performance in the Hungarian crisis has offered such evidence," said Walter.

Future Plans
In discussing ICEM's future plans, Walter stressed the necessity of increasing its efforts designed to find in underdeveloped and underpopulated countries of Latin America, Canada and Australia, opportunities for the resettlement of large numbers of unskilled or semi-skilled European manpower for which there is little room in the highly industrialized countries.

Walter also stressed the inadaptability of moving migrants to countries where industrial unemployment re-occurs whenever their economy undergoes periods of recession. He urged that ICEM's efforts be directed toward the preparation of future immigrants to face the conditions in which they find themselves in the foreign lands to which they are brought.

"The lack of educational and language training as well as insufficient knowledge of the way of life and of the working methods of the country of resettlement, has an adverse effect on the assimilability of the immigrant," Walter said.

"In planning its future activities and expansion," continued Walter, "the Intergovernmental Committee for European Migration should recognize that successful international cooperation in the field of migration, must be based on the preparation of a proper reception in the new land for a properly trained new settler."

The Washington session of ICEM's special six-nation group will last until Wednesday.

Tavern Association Plans Event

AT ITS meeting on Sunday afternoon, Feb. 16, the Pike-Wayne Tavern Assn. will set the stage for a get-together and general session of all tavern licensees in the two counties, as the finale of a year-long membership drive that has resulted in the tripling of its membership.

The February meeting will be held at Adam's Old Elm Inn, Bethany Road, Honesdale, RD. A luncheon will follow with Adam Kustwan as host.

The date for the two-county general meeting has been set for Sunday, March 16, and will be held at the Continental House, Route 507, Greentown, with Joseph Oppelt, the association's president, who is also a member of the State Tavern Owner's Association Legislative Committee, presiding.

In Charge
Frank Seifert, Newfoundland Hotel operator, chairman of the membership committee, and Mrs. Dorothy E. Wood, of Taffton, secretary, are in charge of the membership drive project.

At the recent meeting of the association, held at the Eddy Hotel, Hawley, the newly elected officers were formally installed by Thomas Roger, Newfoundland, a past officer.

Joseph Brennan, of Uswick, Inn, Uswick, was appointed chairman of the anniversary banquet to be held at Greeley Casino, Greeley, in October. The meeting attendance, according to Dorothy E. Wood, the secretary, was the largest in the association's five years of existence.

It takes a GIANT to quench a 36-billion-gallon thirst

The man who asks, "Fill 'er up, sir?", is one of thousands of friendly operators and attendants of the more than 182,000 service stations across the country. Together, they pumped over 36 billion gallons of gasoline and poured almost a half billion gallons of motor oil into passenger cars in 1957.

Processing, distributing and retailing petroleum products is a gigantic job requiring the services of men, machines and media. Highest on the list of advertising media are newspapers—a giant that keeps the public informed of the quality of these products.

Over 58,000,000 newspapers are bought daily by people who thirst for news and buy from newspaper advertising. That's one of the reasons why dealers, jobbers and manufacturers of petroleum, like so many other sellers of goods, place more money in newspapers than in any other medium.

If you have a thirst for sales, you can quench it quicker and with much more satisfaction in the action medium—the action-packed daily newspaper.

All business is local...and so are all newspapers.
